Dear Christopher,

More correctly, we have only updated from v.2.0.0 directly to v.2.0.4.

With v.2.0.0, no overflow problem. We can define the number of attachments per line. This is a good feature.

With v.2.0.4, overflow problem occurs. Apart from this, the short date format has been changed to the following while we prefer "03/04/2021 16:29".

We now have changed to use long and localised to avoid any doubt as to the month and date:

Date: Sat, Apr 3, 2021, 4:29 PM

The reason that we prefer 16:29 is that when 12:30 PM appears, we have to think whether it is morning or afternoon.

The best format would be like that below with the difference from the GMT stated also:

Sent: Sat, 03 Apr 2021 16:29:48 +0800

KC

I just did more testing.

v2.0.0 handles the table correctly

v2.0.1 the table overflows - all later versions have the same problem

Does this match your observations for when it last worked?

Dear Christopher,

Same table as in the replied email below:

if you could send and e-mail with the actual table (not an image)

that way I can directly debug cheers to Hong Kong,one of my favorite city in the world!

Dear Christopher,

Thank you for your attention! I have not checked GitHub earlier.

I have first sent to myself the email below.

The following is an image of the email after receipt with the window narrowed. The table copied from Word file can shrink:

However, when print-previewed, the table overflows to the right:

This did not happen before your latest update.

The table is fine when PrintingTools NG is disabled.
